Steve Harvey’s Epic Blunder – A Crisis Communications Plan

By David E. Johnson, CEO, Strategic Vision PR Group

Comedian and television personality, Steve Harvey made the verbal blunder that is resonating around the world while hosting the Miss Universe pageant when he announced the wrong winner. Harvey in announcing the winner of the contest announced that Miss Colombia, Ariadna Gutierrez Arevalo was the winner only moments later to announce that she was first runner up and Miss Philippines, Pia Alonzo Wurzbach was the actual winner. Compounding the blunder was the fact that Arevalo had already been crowned and had to suffer the indignity of having the crown removed. Social media and traditional media exploded. Conspiracy theories surfaced that it was all a plot to attract attention to the Miss Universe pageant. Learn more...

The Next Steps in Reputation Management for the NFL after the Ray Rice Crisis

By Ronn Torossian, CEO, 5W PR

If you need an example of how to badly manage a brand crisis, look no further than the NFL. The horrific video of Ravens running back Ray Rice abusing his fiancée in an Atlantic City casino elevator has become an unprecedented scandal. There is mounting pressure for NFL commissioner Roger Goodell to resign. It is estimated that nearly 70 percent of Americans watch NFL football, so such a major blow to their reputation could be staggering. How does the league regain the public’s trust?

Stop being one step behind the news

The first rule of crisis management is to stay ahead of the media, and the NFL failed on every count. They failed to cut Rice from the Ravens until after TMZ released the full elevator video. They failed to acknowledge they had seen the entire video, then proof emerged that they received it in April. Learn more...

Media Training Minute: Peyton Manning in Crisis Communication Mode

Mike Bako, Marketing Director at D S Simon Media, critiques the crisis communication fail by Peyton Manning and his public relations team as allegations hit the headlines of sexual assault claims dating back to his time at the University of Tennessee.

Peyton was quick to offer an outright denial of recent HGH usage claims but has been totally silent on this new lawsuit and media coverage. He needs to tell his side of the story before more harm is done to his reputation and possible future endorsement opportunities.

#DuggarScandal – Breaking the Cardinal Rules in Crisis Communications
By David E. Johnson, CEO, Strategic Vision, LLC

Several of the cardinal rules in crisis communications are – always have a plan and prepare for any scenario. Yet time and again, we see organizations, brands, and celebrities forgetting those rules. The latest example of this is the scandal involving Josh Duggar of TLC’s hit show, “19 Kids and Counting”. When dealing with reality television, anything that can happen in real life can happen to a reality star, networks have forgotten this at their own peril.

Josh Duggar admitted last week to sexually molesting underage girls including several of his sisters. While the admissions were shocking, they should not have been to TLC. Such allegations about him have been around for a number of years. The Oprah Winfrey Show was aware of these rumors and reportedly contacted a child protection hotline. Learn more...
